

Sept. 12, 2023

Speakers

TERRI CRAWFORD

Terri Crawford, JD, is a community fellow for UNO's Service Learning Academy and an instructor in the Black Studies department. She leads at the intersection of social justice, community engagement, and public policy, culminating over two decades of experience with her passion for achieving a more just world. She's also on the governing board of the new documentary "Divisible" and provides in-depth tours of the "Undesign the Redline" exhibit at UNO.

STEVE JENSEN

Steve Jensen, PLA, AICP, is a planning and urban design consultant. He spent 35 years with the Omaha City Planning Department before retiring after serving several years as Director. His accomplishments included directing the most comprehensive update of the City's Master Plan in Omaha's history, annexation of the City of Elkhorn, and the award-winning Urban Design Master Plan, Urban Design Code and 2009 Downtown Omaha Master Plan.

PRESTON LOVE, JR.

Preston Love, Jr. is the founder and CEO of the Institute for Urban Development, an Omaha nonprofit dedicated to developing urban communities through engagement, economic growth initiatives, leadership growth, and Get Out The Vote initiatives. He brings the wisdom derived from his life experiences, his crusade and community activism for economic inclusion to his work, with many years of social justice organizing experience and deep knowledge of Omaha's history.

Moderator

KIMARA SNIPES

Kimara Snipes, a native of Omaha, serves as Executive Director of One Omaha. Kimara has organized in East Omaha communities since she was a teenager and has continued that work through her involvement with East Omaha neighborhood associations and by serving as president of the South Omaha Neighborhood Alliance. She holds a nonprofit administration certification from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and a diversity and inclusion certification from Cornell.

Our Sponsors

